

Who Has Been Re-elected to Willson Avenue Temple.

Rabbi Moses J. Gries was re-elected for a term of five years at the annual meeting of the Temple congregation Monday evening.

Officers and trustees were also elected as follows: M. A. Marks, president; Sigmund Schlessinger, vice president; E. Einstein, treasurer; K. Hays, cemetery trustee; Dr. M. Rosenwasser, M. B. Schwab, I. J. Lehman and Charles Eisenman, trustees for three years, and A. Lewenthal trustee for one year to fill an unexpired term.

The fiftieth anniversary of the congregation will be celebrated May 26.

for I read in the paper tonight of several houses which were entered lately."

For three minutes he rummaged in the bureau among collars, cuffs and handkerchiefs until he brought forth his revolver which had not been fired off since the Fourth of July a number of years ago. He then lit the lamp, while his legs knocked together, threatening to scrape the skin from the kneecaps, and his teeth chattered like the far away rattle of musketry.

He was a good representation, in some ways, of Liberty, doing the lighting act as he walked tenderly toward the parlor. The instant the light shone in the parlor there was a merry laugh of boys outside, the scamper of many feet and the noise stopped altogether. What Charles said when he got back to the bedroom isn't known, but in it there was something about forgetting about Hollow'een.

This is only one of many similar occurrences which provoked mirth and anger in this city last night. The small boy was out in all his glory, and the results of his work were plainly visible even at an early hour in the evening. Here was a lamppost bedecked with a gate that had not been securely fastened or a part of a picket fence which was movable; here was a front door tied shut or a gate which could not be taken from its hinges wired so that it could not be opened. The lampposts and trees about the city generally suffered from an overabundance of vegetables, while in many places ancient fruit or vegetables found a place on a front porch.

"Gosh, but that cabbage stump nearly went through the glass in that door," cried one urchin as a crowd ran down the street and turned into a dark alley. They were closely followed by a man dressed in negligence and who carried a broom in a threatening manner.

Life for the man who had a fine piece of glass in his front door was anything but pleasant. Some who were lucky enough to have left their screens up closed these and made a mark against which the projectiles thrown by the youngsters struck harmlessly, while others stood guard with a stout stick and laid in ambush for the enemy to begin operations and at the first volley an attack was made, followed by a graceful retreat of the enemy down alleys or over neighboring fences.

Tick-tacks, jack-o'-lanterns, cabbage stumps and the "squawker" made of a small tin can and a rosined string, all of which were operated by the clever hand of the youngster to the dismay and discomfort of the older folks, kept things in many parts of the city in such a stir that some people wished a law could be enacted to abolish the celebration of Hollow'een.

PARK BOARD BONDS.

There Are Many Ways in Which the Money Will be Spent—Sale Must be Advertised.

The $500,000 worth of park improvement bonds which were authorized by the city council Monday night will have to be advertised thirty days before they can be sold.

There is a considerable discussion as to what the bonds are for. Secretary Bangs of the park board explained yesterday that one-half of the sum authorized will be devoted to the purposes of securing land for parkway purposes in the connection of Edgewater park with the Superior street viaduct and the development and improvement of Edgewater park and its approaches. The contracts for this work, Mr. Bangs said, will be let as soon as possible so that the work can go along next spring.

The remaining half will be used in the purchase and improvement of a park in the Newburg district, so called, lying between Brooklyn and the Cuyahoga river; the improvement of Woodland Hills park in the Kinsman street district, so called, at and near the corner of Kinsman street and Woodland Hills avenue, and the improvements in Gordon park rendered necessary by the condition of its gift.

Mr. Bangs says these are of a minor nature. Also minor improvements in general including the completion of work now begun in Wade park.

WILLIAM F. EIRICK SUED.

Mrs. Georgianna Eirick Filed a Petition for Divorce Yesterday.

Georgianna Eirick filed a divorce petition in the common pleas court Tuesday against William F. Eirick, a well known West Side citizen, who resides at No. 405 Gordon avenue. Eirick is a member of the firm of Eirick Bros., proprietors of the Cleveland union stockyards, and possesses considerable property.

Mrs. Eirick charges her husband with extreme cruelty and gross neglect, and says that he has frequently called her bad names. The Eiricks have been married about five years and have no children.

A HOT FIGHT AHEAD.

Glenville is Much Stirred Over the Anti-Saloon Movement.

It is probable that nothing further will develop in the Glenville anti-saloon fight.
